I think you should be able to buy cylinders other than the SCBA manufacturers as long as they meet the standard and have been approved by the proper agencies.

I was looking to buy a cylinder different from my air packs one time and was told by the manufacturer I had to buy from them. They said they did not use this supplier. I got to checking and found that over half the cylinders I had had both the scba manufacturers name and the cylinder company I was looking to buy.

What was the difference? The scba manufacturer was considerably higher
