

Overview of CDC-OT18-1803: Tribal Public Health Capacity Building and Quality Improvement Umbrella Cooperative Agreement

In 2018, CDC's Center for State, Tribal, Local, and Territorial Support (CSTLTS) announced a five-year funding opportunity for eligible federally recognized tribal nations and/or tribally designated organizations to strengthen and improve the public health infrastructure and performance of tribal public health systems. This program exemplifies CSTLTS's commitment to advance US public health agency and system performance, capacity, agility, and resilience.

Purpose

This program's purpose is to provide resources for American Indian and Alaska Native (AI/AN) tribal nations and regional AI/AN tribally designated organizations to optimize the quality and performance of the tribal public health system, including infrastructure, workforce, data and information systems, programs and services, resources and communication, and partnerships. Work in these areas will increase the capacity of Indian Country to identify, respond to, and mitigate public health threats and decrease burden of disease among AI/ANs.

Outcomes

This program intends to achieve the following outcomes:

- Increased implementation of tools and processes that build operational capacity and effectiveness
- Improved collection, maintenance, interpretation, and dissemination of tribal health data
- Increased use of core and discipline-specific public health competencies among public health workers
- Development of culturally relevant public health resources and communication tools
- Translation of evidence-based and evidence-informed practices into culturally appropriate public health programs, policies, and services
- Established multi-sectorial partnerships (e.g., schools, health care, public safety, commerce) to address capacity building and quality improvement
- Increased use of nationally established standards, such as those for public health department accreditation
- Increased number of qualified public health workers
- Implementation of culturally practice-based evidence programs and services
- Increased coordination of multisector partnerships to generate collective public health impact

Program Strategy

AI/AN tribal nations and tribally designated organizations will work toward improving the performance of tribal public health systems. Recipients will be asked to provide assistance in one or more of the following areas: 1) improving tribal public health system infrastructure and operational capacity, 2) building the competencies of the tribal public health workforce, 3) improving tribal public health data and information systems, 4) strengthening tribal public health programs and services, 5) improving the provision of tribal public health resources and communication, and 6) developing and maintaining tribal public health partnerships.

Funding Period

- Period of Performance: 5 years (August 31, 2018–August 30, 2023)
